TRAGEDY OCCURS ON LAMAR ROAD

Filling Station Operator Slays Wife, Turns Gun On Himself

Hundreds of people Monday visited Emberson-Brown-Roden funeral home to see the body of Mrs. Tom Manuel, 32, who Sunday night was shot and killed by her 32-year old husband who in turn took his own life at a filling station on the Lamar road. At the request of Manuel's two surviving sons, visitors were not permitted to see the slain man.

Calling for his wife Sunday night at the home of J. U. Martin, 112 Lamar avenue, where she was then living, Manuel drove immediately to his filling station where within a few minutes several pistol shots and screams were heard by neighbors. The two bodies, each with a bullet hole in the head and chest, at 9:30 were found near the filling station by Sheriff W. A. Walters, John Collins and Arthur Payne, deputies, who were called by W. D. Qualls.

Friends of the murdered woman said Manuel, during a separation of two or three weeks, had threatened to kill her unless she returned to him. Urged by her friends not to go with her husband when he called for her Sunday night, Mrs. Manuel crossed the street to Manuel's parked car and began the death ride which ended at the filling station at the intersection of Lamar road and Spain street.

Formerly employed by the county as road gang guard, Manuel recently has owned and operated the filling station on Lamar road. Mrs.

WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE MAY TALK WAR DEBTS

Reparations Discussion Is Seen As Follow to Week End London Meet

LONDON, June 8, (AP)—The notion a world economic conference to consider the problem of war reparations might be the outcome of last week-end's Anglo-German discussions at Chequers continued to prevail in many quarters Monday, although the German ministers eschewed politics for the day and devoted their time entirely to filling social engagements.

The big event was a 20-minute conference with King George V. Both Chancellor Bruening and Prime Minister Curtius appeared extremely delighted with their visit to the King because it marked the first time since the World war that German statesmen have been received at Buckingham palace.

Germans Gratified

The German statesmen were gratified with the king's sympathetic attitude toward Germany, although the king made no secret of the fact that he considers England has her own pack of trouble at the present time.

London newspapers Monday linked the forthcoming visits to Europe of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and Andrew W. Mellon secretary of the Treasury, with a promise made at the week end conference to collaborate with other governments. A spokesman for the Chequers conversations said it was felt that "the ball had been started rolling on the whole international economic question, especially reparations."

At their conference with King George the king spoke English exclusively, but Ambassador Von Neurath served as interpreter for Foreign Minister Curtius, who does not speak English. Chancellor Bruening speaks English fluently.

Jerusalem's Ancient Wailing Wall Property of Moslems, But Jews May Worship There

LONDON, June 8 (AP)—The ancient wailing wall in Jerusalem, over which Moslems and Jews have clashed at times in fatal riots, is owned solely by the Moslems, a special government commission ruled Monday.

The commission, which was created by the British government with the approval of the League of Nations council, also declared that the Jews should have free access to the wall for devotional purposes at all times, but it outlined certain definite conditions regarding appurtenances of worship.

All political speeches and demonstrations are forbidden in the neighborhood of the wall and the Moslems were told not to annoy the Jews when they gathered there for their devotions.

Use of benches, carpets and similar belongings is prohibited at the wall and the Jews were told not to blow the ram's horn in the vicinity. However, on their days of worship they are allowed to place near the wall the cabinet ark containing the Torah scrolls.

A DOLLAR LINE

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 8, (INS)—It has been estimated by one of the workers in the state treasurer's office, that if all of the money taken in by that department in 1930, were converted into silver dollars and these coins arranged into piles they would make 2,264 stacks each as high as the dome of the state capitol building. It was further figured out that if they were all laid out so that the edge of one would just touch another a line of silver dollars would be constructed that would reach from Chicago to Los Angeles and then one to San Francisco.

PANTAGES' PARTY IS DESCRIBED BY GIRL WITNESSES

Second Girl Testifies In California's "Girl Market" Case Monday

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 8, (AP)—The second girl witness described to the jury in the "girl market" case Monday the hotel party here last October which resulted in the arrest of Alexander Pantages, showman and others on conspiracy and morals charges.

Helen Livingston, who the state charged was brought to San Diego by Olive Clark Day and William Jobelmann, alleged operators of a Hollywood "girl market" for the party was the witness. Her testimony followed closely that given by Lydia Nitto, youthful complaining witness against Pantages. Jesse H. Shreve, prominent San Diego business man and the alleged mart operators.

Before Miss Nitto was excused from the stand Lorrin Andrews, attorney for Mrs. Day, obtained from her on cross examination an admission she had told the Day woman that Pantages had "treated me very nice, but I don't know why."

Later on redirect examination she explained Mrs Day had told her Pantages "was stingy" and "I meant that he had treated me nice when he gave me $10 in the hotel room."

An affidavit, in which Miss Nitto last year gave her age as 22, and the treatment accorded the girl by Los Angeles district attorney's office, continued as the focal points in her examination

OIL INTERESTS TO ASK LEGISLATIVE AID IN PRORATION

Meeting Of Independent Men In Dallas Is Far From Harmonious

BOTH SIDES OF FIGHT ARGUED

Blame For Conditions In Oil Industry Is Flung at Many

DALLAS, June 8, (AP)—The conference of Texas Independent oil men, after several addresses dealing in emphatic fashion with what was described as "uninformed and incompetent leadership" among certain East Texas oil interests, decided to seek legislative aid in damming the onrush of East Texas oil, and to negotiate with non-operating owners to the same end.

No Unanimity

There was no unanimity in placing the blame for the conditions that have beaten down the price of Texas oil from above a dollar a barrel a year or so ago, to the present purported ten cents, said to be the price of a good deal of the crude now coming from the East Texas fields.

Carl Estes, Tyler newspaperman, who led the more or less successful fight against proration in East Texas, was the target of a number of speakers, while others defended his course and said that while he may have erred in some respect, his actions sprang from a desire to protect the interests of East Texas landowners, brought from the desperation of a severe drouth to approaching prosperity by the discovery of oil.

To Approach Majors

Robert R. Penn, member of the Texas proration advisory committee, proposed an adopted motion that a general committee appointed at Monday's session to attain the ends of the meeting, be instructed to negotiate with representatives of the major oil companies, landowners and any other concerned in efforts to choke down the production.

The general committee, composed of fifty-seven members, in a session immediately after the main meeting, made plans to attack the problem from every angle. W. L. Todd, Dallas drilling contractor and former vice president of the Simms Oil Company, was elected chairman of the general emergency committee, with Frank P. Zoch, San Antonio, vice chairman and Ed A. Landreth, Fort Worth secretary-treasurer.

To Work Out Plans

The committee named a subcommittee to work out complete organization plans and to make overtures to Governor Sterling for a formal committee visit this week, probably Thursday. At the some time, the whole committee will meet in Austin to further plans for the campaign.

At the meeting with Governor Sterling, committeemen will attempt to convince him that a special session of the legislature is a "dire necessity" to put teeth into proration laws as a preliminary step to choking off the field.

One Killed And Five Injured As Auto Overturns

GREENVILLE, June 8, (AP)—One person was killed and five others injured Monday when the automobile in which they were riding went out of control and plunged down an embankment beside the Dallas-Texarkana highway, turning over several times.

Annie Mae Williamson, 3, died instantly.

The injured were: Her mother, Mrs. Carter Williamson; Mrs. W. O. Williamson, 49; Doran Parrish, 9; Mrs. Nora True; R. S. True, 10, and Carl Williamson, 8 months.

All were from Dallas. They were en route from Dallas to Texarkana to visit relatives when the accident occurred.

The Williamson child's body was sent to Dallas, where funeral rites will be held Tuesday; and the injured were removed later Monday to Dallas hospitals.

AMERICAN WOMEN SPOILED BY MEN

LONDON, June 8, (AP)—American women are spoiled, much more so than English women, J. B. Priestley, British author, told interviewers Monday between the acts of his play "Good Companions."

"The American husband," he said "is probably the ideal husband—for the American woman.

"Hollywood is a place where people get up at six o'clock in the morning and do physical exercises. It is terribly respectable and even duller than Bloomsbury. A lot of people are out of work there where they no longer build palaces and ride in gold plated cars.

"The whiskey I got in America was rather raw but not poisonous."

Morley Advises Writers

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 8, (INS)—The finished work of an author is almost never what he really planned it to be, Christopher Morley, novelist told members of the Philobiblon Club here. Sometimes the theme of the work gains such control over the mental processes of the writer that he resorts to some "particular" manner. The author suggested that a book should be written setting down just what a great writer thinks about while he is writing a book as a work which would prove of great value to the younger school of writers.

Personalities Behind The News

Editor's Note: This is another of a series of stories of the little known side of prominent personalities.

HOLLYWOOD, June 8, (AP).—Marlene Dietrich can be one of Hollywood's best dressed women, and just the opposite. Some days she wears smart outfits and jewels; then she gets tired of being dressed up and wears an old suit and a hat that has become lop-sided.

She prefers low heels to high and never uses perfume, she sprays her hair with diluted toilet water. Her favorite color is an indistinct shade of blue that matches her saxon blue eyes. Her finger nails are always blood red.

She uses scarcely any makeup on the street. Asked why, she said: "In Germany they talk about women who have on too much paint." She started using lip rouge after arriving in Hollywood.

She is the only star Paramount ever hired who didn't demand her dressing room be redecorated. She plays the musical saw, the violin and the piano. Every afternoon when she is working she has apple strudel.

Two or three times a week she invites her American hairdresser, her German maid and her Belgian chauffeur to her apartment for dinner usually consisting of Hungarian goulash, prepared by her German cook. They all sit at the same table.

Her husband, named Seibert, is a film director in Germany. When she is away from home she writes twice a week to her five-year-old daughter, Maria. Marlene is a combination of the names of two of her aunts, Maria and Helene.

She has a good grounding in English, learned when she was very young, but like most other Germans she gave up speaking it during the war. To help her get rid of a natural gutteral accent, Joseph Von Sternberg, her director, had her repeat sentences after him. He insisted that her English be as nearly perfect as possible, and there never was any laxness in his training.

FARMERS MUST MEET MARKET, HYDE DECLARES

Cotton Raised In South Must Compete With the World's Crop, Says

OTHER CROPS IN SIMILAR SHAPE

Lower Living Standards of Other Countries Pointed Out As Factor

MANHATTAN, Kas., June 8, (AP)—Secretary Hyde told American farmers Monday night their plans for production must start with consideration of the economic demands of the market.

Addressing the American Institute of Cooperation, the department of agriculture secretary said, "Whether we shall continue to produce price breaking surpluses x x x boils down to how we want to live.

"Today the American farmer," he said in a prepared address, "demands an American standard of living. Such a standard of living is possible. Indeed, we must attain it. But the farmer himself must not defeat it.

Can Then Organize

"His productions plans must start with consideration of the economic demands of the market. Adhering to that procedure all along the line, we can then organize agriculture so that the American farmer can reach the golden goal of economic equality."

Secretary Hyde said the intelligence, thrift, industry and efficiency of the American farmer "is great enough to meet and defeat the world in producing any of our great agricultural crops.

"But to do so," he said, "they will have to sell on world markets at world prices. That means that Southern planters shall measure their living standards against those of India and China; and that wheat growers must meet Russian standards of living."

SHAW'S CRITICISM OF JOAN OF ARC IRKS CHURCHMAN

Sharp Reply to Famous Writer's Speech Is Made By Archbishop

LONDON, June 8, (AP)—George Bernard Shaw's recent radio speech in connection with the Rouen commemoration of Joan of Arc, in which the playwright declared the French girl was lacking in "sex appeal" and was not pretty, drew a reply Monday night from another churchman, the Catholic archbishop of Westminster.

"Both in letters to correspondents and in communications to the press," the archbishop's statement said, "the British Broadcasting company has suggested that the choice of Mr. Bernard Shaw to speak on St. Joan of Arc was made with the knowledge and implied approval of the Archbishop of Westminster.

"His eminence desires it to be known that this suggestion is without foundation and in his opinion the choice of words by Shaw were unfortunate. They have given grave offense to Catholics both in England and abroad."

When Shaw's attention was called to the archbishop's comment, he replied:

"I never speak without giving offense to a very large number of people, and there is nothing new in it.

"Perhaps I did not deal with the subject in the way that many Catholics would like to have it dealt with, and I am sorry I did not have time to develop the side which the church was celebrating at the time.

"After all, my business is to say what other persons leave out."

VATICAN, ITALIAN GOVERNMENT YET HOPE FOR ACCORD

Neither Side Despairs of Finding Way Out Of Serious Controversy

ROME, June 8, (AP)—The Vatican and the Italian government were still searching Monday for a basis of at least a temporary solution of the controversy that exists between them, and at the moment neither side despairs of finding one.

Through regular diplomatic channels and through unofficial negotiators the conversations are continuing. It was learned on the best authority Monday and there was nothing to indicate any drastic steps were contemplated.

The Vatican's two notes to the government are still unanswered by written reply, but it was assumed Monday the government's reply was probably delayed by discussions to determine its character.

Both Papal Nuncio Borgongini Duca and Ambassador De Vecchi are still carrying on their normal duties, and it was understood the secret negotiations with the government are in the hands of the Marchesi Pacelli, the pope's legal counsel. Cardinal Pietro Gasparri, who signed the lateran treaty and the concordat, is continuing to advise the vatican.

On every hand active efforts to reach a solution are evident. Should the negotiators fail to to reach an accord soon, however, it was said in some circles the vatican may feel obliged to insist the government formally apologize for the alleged insults to the pope.

'Drummer' of Brown Derby And Risque Stories, Is Gone For Good, Say TPA Leaders

SAN FRANCISCO, June 8, (AP)—The traveling man who formerly was known as a drummer and who wore a brown derby and a checkered vest, told risque stories, ogled the small town belles, sat up with other drummers at all night poker games in hotels and wound up by padding his expense account is a thing of the past.

This was asserted in one form or another by virtually all of the officials of the Travelers' Protective association which opened its annual convention here Monday. President W. S. Murchison of Raleigh, N. C., said the traveling salesman today is a practical psychologist, leading the nation out of depression.

Albert J. Stimpson, who has been selling drugs for 40 years, explained about the dirty stories. In the first place, he told newspaper men, there are no new stories. What with the radio and certain types of magazines everybody hears the latest yarn at about the same time. Then, too, the salesmen haven't the time.

The long train rides and the long layovers in snowbound towns are things of the past. Good roads and competition mean there must be hurry and alertness and "no foolin'."

The 1600 delegates were welcomed by Governor James Rolph, Jr., who came down from Sacramento for that purpose, and Mayor Angelo J. Rossi.

Mexico to Demand Investigation Of Case

ARDMORE, Okla., June 8, (AP)—Urged to action by the governor of Oklahoma and the representative of a foreign government, Carter county authorities decided Monday night to bring murder charges in connection with the slaying by a peace officer Monday, of two Mexican boys returning home from American colleges—one a relative of the Mexican president.

Marvin Shilling, county attorney, said murder charges would be filed Tuesday against Bill Guess, deputy sheriff, who, in the belief he faced desperadoes, shot to death Emilio Cortes Rubio, 20, relative of President Ortiz Rubio of the southern republic and his chum, Manuel Gomez, 22. Similar charges, Shilling said, would be brought against Deputy Sheriff Cecil Crosby, companion of Guess.

Killed on Highway.

The boys were killed beside their motor car, parked along a main highway here early Monday morning. Salvador Cortes Rubio, 24, another relative of the president was unhurt.

Shilling's announcement followed request by the officers that the charges be filed so they might be vindicated, for they contended Guess fired after the boys had drawn guns.

Previously Governor William H. Murray had asked that a thorough investigation be conducted and Senor H. Valdez, Mexican consul at Oklahoma City, had made a formal request that Guess be charged with murder. Shilling and Valdez cooperated in an inquiry late Monday.

MURRAY MAKES STATEMENT.

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 8, (AP)—Governor W. H. Murray Monday directed Attorney General J. Berry King and officers of the state bureau of criminal identification, to assist County Attorney Marvin Shilling, Ardmore, in investigation of fatal shootings of Emilio Cortes Rubio, cousin of the president of Mexico and Manuel Gomez, a companion, at Ardmore Monday.

The youths were shot to death by Deputy Sheriff Bill Guess while returning to Mexico from Kansas where they attended school.

Earlier in the day the governor asked the county attorney if he desired the assistance of the state in the inquiry. Shilling replied, asking aid.

FORGER STEALS 9 CHECKS; CASHES 3

Locval Officers Seek Trace Of Man Who Took Lyon-Gray Checks

Local patrolmen Monday afternoon were searching for a man who Saturday passed three $17.50 checks bearing the forged signatures of G. B. Sharpe, manager of Lyon-Gray Lumber company. Nine blank checks Friday afternoon were stolen from the company checkbook while one of the employes was searching for a piece of lumber requested by the thief's accomplice.

Following the discovery Monday morning of the missing checks Mr. Sharpe telephoned the numbers to the bank where it was learned all three checks had been honored. The checks were made payable to and indorsed by Ed Hill.

In the three instances only a small amount of merchandise was purchased from the three local firms by the bearer of the forged checks.

A severed telephone line Saturday evening was discovered at the lumber company office but the checks were not missed until Monday morning.

Gus Cothran, chief of police, and Lloyd Floyd, local patrolman, Monday afternoon made inquiries at the lumber company where no reports of the forgeries had been made to the police.

The checks were stolen while the thief's accomplice lured an employe away from the office in search of a pine board to be used in the construction of a drafting board.

600 GRADUATES AT U. OF TEXAS

Forty-Seventh Commencement Exercises Are Held Monday Morning

AUSTIN, June 8.—— Degrees were conferred upon approximately six hundred graduates of The University of Texas at the forty-seventh annual commencement exercises held Monday morning in the auditorium of the new gymnasium building, Dr. H. Y. Benedict, president of the University, who presented the diplomas, addressed the students and large audience, taking for his general subject the cost and value of an education and the importance of good citizenship.

"The University of Texas, the earliest known recorded mention of which is dated 1837, after nearly fifty years of planning, through the influence of Governor O. M. Roberts, was finally opened to students in 1883," he said. "After another nearly fifty years of active existence, in very round numbers we find the following situation: There are over sixty thousand Ex-Students, 'Texas Exes' as we like to call them; about 16,500 degrees have been conferred, not counting those to be conferred this morning.

"Deducting the present value of the educational plant of the University at Austin and Galveston, deducting also the money spent for extension, economic geology, and other extramural purposes not properly chargeable to resident student teaching, the total cost to the state of teaching these 65,000 students, of whom a fourth have graduated, has been in the neighborhood of $20,000,000.

"In other words, and in rough averages: Among every four hundred inhabitants of Texas there is one graduate of the University and there are three ex-students who did not graduate. And each ex-student has cost the state about $400; each graduate has cost $900 or $1,000. Excluding what the students or their parents have spent for board and clothes and other outside living expenses, the total cost of the University, Main and Medical, to date has been appreciably below $40,000,000.

HOME SOUGHT FOR GIRL 12

Once more the King's Daughters are asking for a home for a child in their care for the summer months.

This time a 12 years old girl is in need of some place to live where she can work for her board, clothes and other necessities until school opens in the fall. This child is large for her age, talented, willing and interested to work. There are no encumbrances which will interfere with some family taking her for the summer. She is well versed in house work and is intelligent and able to learn easily.

"The King's Daughters are determined to give the children of their cases a chance to obtain an education. We want a decent home for this girl who is ambitious to make something of herself. If anyone will be interested in taking the girl for the summer and letting her work for her board, clothes and room, she may investigate the case by calling at my office in the City Hall," Mrs. Turner Duncan, King's Daughters supervisor said.

Former Pastor Sends Tribute To Marion Brown

Because of inability to be present at the funeral of the late Marion Brown, Frank Richardson formerly pastor of the First Methodist church here has sent a short tribute to his memory to the Paris News.

Mr. Richardson says:

"In a ministry of 17 years, I find the memory of Mr. Brown an outstanding one. He was a man, through and through. Clean, honorable, charitable and brotherly. His friends' need was his opportunity, his great heart went out in generous response to every call of need. The orphan, the needy preacher, the unfortunate neighbor were all objects of his unstinted generousity. Seldom have I known a man more generous to the church—and yet this was all quietly, lovingly done. You could blow no trumpets when he was concerned. In his home, where hospitality was always dispensed in a lavish way, he was at his best. Happy the man or woman that had the privilege of this good home and could call friends, this good man and this good woman.

He was a real friend and a great host of men and women will rise up and lovingly testify to this fact. Friend, neighbor, home-maker, lover of all that is good and true in humanity, has been called home. We that are true and loyal to these things have evidence in our own hearts that we shall see and know him again.

This is the testimony of a devoted friend."

Signed, Frank M. Richardson.

At the Lamar

"The Easiest Way," which comes to the Lamar theatre Wednesday is an adaption of the sensational Eugene Walter stage play, considered one of the immortal classics of the American stage. Jack Conway directed the production.

Laura Murdock (Constance Bennett) is striving to rise out of the squalid poverty in which she was born. She accepts a job as model in an advertising agency, which takes her out of the department store in which she started. She attracts the attention of Brockton (Adolphe Menjou), head of the agency.

Later, when she visits her sister, Peg (Anita Page), she is told to get out of the house by Nick, Peg's husband (Clark Gable).

She travels west with Brockton as his "secretary." In the west she meets and falls in love with Madison (Robert Montgomery), a young newspaper man, who leaves immediately for the Argentine. She promises to wait for him. She gives up Brockton, wealth and luxury, but weeks pass and she does not hear from Madison. She succumbs to economic urge and again sees Brockton.

Madison returns and in her joy, Laura breaks a promise to Brockton, and does not tell her lover of her true relations with the head of the ad agency. A scene ensues between the three which carries the play to its surprising climax.

Other players of importance include Anita Page, Marjorie Rambeau, J. Farrell Macdonald, Clara Blandick and Clark Gable.

At the Plaza

Showing at the Plaza today and tomorrow.

It is Clive Brook, flawless actor and creator of many notably fine screen roles, who portrays the dominant role of the man of law in the new and absorbing Paramount drama, "The Lawyer's Secret". And as the distinguished barrister who holds the fate and loves of four people in his hands, Brook is seen in a role of compelling power and ingratiating charm.

"The Lawyer's Secret comes to the Plaza theatre today and tomorrow.

On the same program is a Pictorial novelty, Sound act, "Via Express," golf novelty "Duffer Swings," and a sound news.

MOTHER NATURE'S SAFETY VALVE ON SWEET

For husky lads whose eyes are bigger than their stomachs, give sweets in diluted form. No confection is more eagerly accepted than sparkling Dr. Pepper. And yet, the proportion of sugar is less than one to six. The bulk of it is pure, sparkling water and fruit juice . . . wholesome, healthful and good. Let them drink their fill.

Good? Of course they're good. If they weren't—well, ship them all off to Greenland and see what would happen back home. Yes, these big boys are long on courage—and resourcefulness, too. Give them a "hand," everybody! They're always ready to lend you one.

It's what's "under the jacket" that counts—

Shiny silver buttons don't make a good officer. Or glittering promises a good cigarette.

CHESTERFIELDS are milder—smoke as many as you like. CHESTERFIELDS taste better—you know that the minute you light up!

More men and women are changing every day from other cigarettes to CHESTERFIELDS.

CORNER DRUG TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE

Celebrating the completion of remodeling and installation of new fixtures throughout, the Corner Drug store will keep open house Tuesday evening to their friends from 7 to 9. Free cigars, cigarettes and candy will be served, also free punch and cake. The kiddies will not be overlooked, as Manager C. J. Musselman has made arrangements for free gifts for the youngsters. Like tobacco . . . the best Gasoline is Blended

THERE are as many kinds of tobacco as there are soils and climate in which the plant is grown. Every smoker knows that no single tobacco makes a pleasant smoke. You may prefer Burley with a touch of Turkish or a mixture which includes Perique. Whatever the preference, every good smoke is blended. The popularity of your favorite brand rests entirely on the adeptness of the blender.

There are various types of gasoline. No one of them contains all the properties you want in a motor fuel. The proper ones in proper balance do contain them. That's why CONOCO refiners developed their balanced-blend, triple-test gasoline. Three types of gasoline are used: Natural Gasoline, for quick starting; Straight-run Gasoline, for power and long mileage; Cracked Gasoline, for its anti-knock properties.

As expertly as the tobacco leaves are mellowed and combined, these three elements are produced and blended in balanced proportions to make CONOCO Gasoline. CONOCO refiners are masters of the art of blending.

You will find this better gasoline wherever you see the CONOCO Red Triangle. Try it today.

Beta Tau sorority gave its annual home coming dance Monday evening at the old K. of P. hall in the Dulaney building on Bonham street, the affair being attended by about 250 invited guests. Many of these were students home from colleges and universities for the summer and others were out of town visitors.

The hall was elaborately decorated in the sorority colors, green and white, with the Beta Tau emblem effectively displayed on two posters, one of which was illuminated with colored lights. Green and white streamers were used at each of the doors and the windows were similarly decorated. Confetti and serpentines were distributed during the evening.

An eleven piece colored band, the Spotlight Entertainers from Little Rock, Ark., played for dancing from 9 to 12 o'clock.

One dance was dedicated specially to the Beta Tau members and their partners and another to the Tau Upsilon Chi sorority, none of the other guests being on the floor during these two numbers. Each of the Beta Tau members was presented with an identical corsage bouquet, furnished by the sorority.

GIRL SCOUT BETTY

—Look Before You Leap

—By Montfort Amory

Bang! Into the girl who had been swimming nearby dove the woman who had plunged from the springboard without noticing anyone below her.

Watching from the float Betty saw the girl lose her head and frantically clutch at the woman. Even before the woman, startled, cried for help, Betty was darting to the rescue.

Betty quickly broke the hold of the younger girl, who regained her presence of mind and swam for shore. But the woman had fainted and had to be towed in.

"I don't know how you managed both of us", cried the woman, gratefully. "Thank the Girl Scouts", smiled Betty. "I learned life saving in camp last summer".

Summer School Students Reach Regular Routine

Summer school students at the Paris Junior college and Paris high school have settled down to regular routine, instructors said Monday. The students registered and attended their first classes last week for the summer term.

Paris Junior College is enrolling more students than it has previously done at this time of the term. Because several universities and colleges dismissed late, numerous students are now registering to take one or two subjects at the Junior college during the summer and later to have their credits transferred to their senior school.

Paris high school instructors are holding classes full time in order that the affiliation may be retained. The high school offers a larger variety of courses this session of summer school than ever before. For the first time a course in speech has been offered by Miss Margie McCulston.

VINDICATE "EASY PAY" PLAN

DURING the late, lamented prosperity era, there were critics of installments buying who feared the entire system would collapse, with consequent chaos for affected business and financial interests, with the first undertow of depression. For years they held up a warning hand and scolded installment buyers and sellers at every opportunity.

Financial crashes and a serious business depression have been visited upon the United States during the last 18 months. Many socalled conservative and long-tried institutions have fallen under the stress and strain of economic adversity. What has been the fate of the installment plan?

Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce and recognized authority on commerce, describes installment buying as "the bright spot in the business picture." He said:

"The American development of the possibilities of selling usable articles on the installment plan, with all its flourishing growth has created no new economic danger. As a system, it has now been put under the most gruelling of tests by a world business depression of almost unparalleled intensity and it has demonstrated its right to survive."

A survey made by the department of commerce and the National Credit Retailers Association clinches the argument by proving that all the alterations in the business trend which can properly be attributed to installment buying are measured in fractions of a per cent.

In the face of these conclusions and facts it would appear that opposition to the system was born of ungrounded fears, blind conservatism, and the thought in non-installment fields that their business was being hurt by the concentration of buying dollars in installment buying, a concentration that had been greatly exaggerated in the fancy of both business and public.

ANTI-POLITICAL PARSONS

AT a time when many persons are more than ever convinced that religionists' interest lie in civil affairs rather than in spiritual things the clearly stated opinions of prominent clergymen now discussing the question are particularly forceful and invigorating. They touch the very roots of the matter, reaffirming vigorously and unequivocally what are historical principles as well as sensible views.

Asserting that the separation of state and church is being neglected, they do not hesitate to name specific examples of what they as ministers consider uncalled for and dangerous meddling. The political activities of some churches, as churches, in behalf of prohibition and Sunday blue laws, are instanced as outstanding examples. Coming from leading clergymen repreesentting several denominations this criticism has especial point.

Roger Williams was a man who defended the individual conscience against any aggression by the power of the state and who founded a commonwealth in which absolute religious liberty was combined with civil democracy. In this he was inspired by the belief that the spiritual side of man must be free from any compulsion, and that the church is not a penal reformatory.

The world has succeeded fairly well in freeing the church from domination by the state, only to face the task of freeing the state from domination by the church. Religious groups, which from excess of zeal, make it their business to attempt ordering the civil and temporal affairs of the world after their own ideas violate the fundamental principles of the democratic form of government.

WHAT! NO AIR!

AMERICAN homes and business quarters have the reputation of being the best and most scientifically ventilated in the world. Europeans shudder at the thought of the American practice of sleeping in bedrooms with the windows wide open even in the dead of winter.

In the face of these world-renowned traditions an eminent Swiss physician comes out with the startling claim that "Americans are so opposed to fresh air, it is a miracle they do not die of suffocation."

He was serious, even grave, but he was referring to the suffocating clothing, not to suffocating rooms.

Doctor K. Rohr, as a member of a party of visiting foreign physicians, observed that masculine America is overdressed from the viewpoint of health. He would have the men discard collars, vests, and some underclothing and cut off their trousers two inches above the knees after the fashion of the Swiss yodelers. He even goes farther to predict the coming to pass of this sartorial revolution.

Europe has carried the sun-and-fresh-air movement farther than it has gone in the United States, although the American people in greatly increasing numbers are going in for swimming, beach-lounging and scantier swimming attire. Public bathing, a la natural has not, however, gained a footing on American soil.

If Dr. Rohr thinks the 1931 American suffocating under too much clothing, what would he have thought of his forbears before red flannels were discarded and summer-weight clothing was introduced.

SOMEBODY'S AN ANEMONE! MIGHT BE YOU, MIGHT BE ME A FUNNY WAY TO LIVE

Marshall Maslin

I CLIMBED over the rocks until came to a hollow place scooped deep by the patient, persistent waves. The hollow was filled with water and in the water lived a host of gay, mysterious sea things—numerous as the contents of a small boy's pocket.

Waving bits of seaweed. An abalone shell turned upward and gleaming beautiful. A cluster of mussels, a group of periwinkles. (I have seen brown plump Japanese children gathering those periwinkles, pulling out their contents with sharp sticks, eating them joyously.) A bright red shelt clinging to rock. Four or five pink rock-crabs, scuttling across the bottom of the pool and hiding in crevices. Bits of rock—every color you know—so much brighter in the water than they ever are after you take them home . . . And by far the most interesting are the Sea Anemones.

You know the Anemone? He's not a flower, he's something that lives in the sea and is less an animal than a vegetable . . . . . A charming round thing that's green or blue or pink and waves his little tentacles easily in the shifting currents . . . . He's hardly more than a Mouth, attached to a rock. You drop a tiny rock into that Mouth or you touch it with a stick and it closes. This rock may be food, this stick may be Something Good to Eat; the Anemone is taking no chances . . . . It discovers that the rock is not food, the stick is not food either; so it opens its mouth and waits some more. It isn't disappointed; it has no emotions about it at all; it doesn't grieve, it doesn't get angry; it does not exactly enjoy life, but it doesn't fear death, either. It's just a Mouth, just an Anemone.

What a strange life an Anemone lives! Just a pretty thing attached to a rock, waiting for food to float its way and fall into its mouth. A dull life, you think? And no human being could ever live as the Anemone does? Well, I don't know about that. Aren't some people always waiting for Something to Happen? Don't some people wait for praise, for luck, for courage, for happiness? Wait as stolidly as the anemone on the rock for life to come to them and fill their little mouths.

Don't they? Then aren't some of us more like Pretty Little Anemones than the vigorous and working Human Beings that we are supposed to be? Who wants to be a Mouth—and nothing more? Does anybody?

DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH TO ALL CLASSES URGED TO AID WORLDY ILLS

By Charles W. Flint
Chancellor of Syracuse University

IF Sovietism in the next twenty-five years evolves a better system, industrially, socially and in serving and conserving human values, it will conquer the world without firing a single shot. If our social system survives it will not be by annihilating condemnation of others but by the persuasion of constructive service to all classes; it will not be by an exhibition of smug supercilliousness but by demonstration of real superiority.

We are not proud just at the moment of the way our own system happens to function. In the richest nation of the world, with no scarcity of goods, indeed with an embarrassing surplus of wheat, sugar, cotton, copper, and by availability of coffee, rubber and other commodities, millions have lacked the necessities of life to say nothing of a margin for worthy living, not through any fault of their own, but through the freezing of the channels and means of distribution.

There seems to be general agreement that something is fundamentally wrong; that employment crises and attendant miseries must be avoided; that ability to purchase and consume must some way be built up to a parity with ability to produce; that a wider and wiser distribution of wealth is necessary if industry itself is to survive, to say nothing of the higher stake—if society itself is to survive.

The situation is complicated, embarrassingly so to our traditions and self-sufficient nationalism, by the fact that it is world-wide. Clearly no longer can nations live each to itself alone (especially nations of Monroe doctrines, immigration laws, tariff walls, exports and imports, price-and-employment problems.)

The demand for a re-centering is being heard and heeded. Capitalism is admitting it must espouse this social responsibility, must become its brother's keeper, must put public service into full partnership with private profits. No one class can serve itself alone. Even bare selfishness knows that to continue to get profits at all it must voluntarily set a limit upon its profits, while the higher selfishness, alias unselfishness, recognizes henceforth, we must be genuinely socially minded, which will prove to be spiritually minded if we are successfully to motivate the ideal of the high welfare of all, the chief-est concern of each.

WHY THE MOON'S HILLS HAVE NEVER WASHED DOWN

THE force of gravity upon the moon being but one-sixth that of the gravity upon the earth, it would naturally follow that the moon never did possess atmosphere or seas, for it requires a physical body much more massive than the moon to retain atmosphere and water from escape into the outer space. In consequence of this the moon has never been changed in its outer surface appearance by erosion (washing down by water) of its rocks. The moon experiences the extremes of heat and cold, but with no water to flood and freeze and crack and dissolve its rocks, the moon's topography remains the same as when volcanic activities ceased.

SAN ANGELO TIMES.

America should buy health instead of "things and more things," according to Dr. William T. Foster, director of the Pollax Foundation for Economic Research.

Foster estimates the annual health expenditure of the country to be $3,000,000,000 and says it could afford to pay that much more.

A great deal—but not too much—has been said about the value of preventive medicine. America, doubtless, could pay $3,000,000,000 more for health, since it is a rather valuable thing, but it is doubtful if that amount would be necessary if people would use doctors to keep them in good health instead of expecting miraculous cures after the damage is done.

MEXIA NEWS.

Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, a typical Republican, proposes to restore the federal sales tax on automobiles and start a system of federal tax on gasoline. It is admitted the proposal is a "feeler" put out to find out the reaction.

Well, here's the reaction of this writer. The people want no sales tax on automobiles nor federal tax on gasoline. If the government needs more money, let the income tax schedule be increased on the upper series. Tax all men making a million dollars a year or more 50 per cent of their income.

We are rapidly becoming a nation of wealth and poverty—the very thing that early Americans came here to avoid in the old world. Our inheritance tax on the big estates should be greatly increased, and the income tax on the really big salaries—$500,000 a year and above, say—should be greatly increased. One third of the people own 80 per cent of the wealth of the nation. That is not right. Better distribution of wealth means more prosperity for all.

We need no federal gasoline tax.

The Latest Expose.

If you want to get the complete story of graft in New York read Mannie Lavine's latest book, "Gimme."

"I wish to state, as I did in 'The Third Degree,'" he says in his foreword, "that I am just an average newspaper man with no political or personal axes to grind. The observations about to be related are those I have made in the course of my work."

There are hundreds of more damning instances than are related in the book, but which cannot be printed, he says, for lack of corroboration. And he ends his forword as follows:

"Our present judicial system is a humorless farce. The only persons who need fear it are the innocent and the uninitiated. My faith in our government, however, is still unimpaired."

"Gimme" is a book that every man, woman and intelligent youngster in the country should read. The Vanguard Press is to be congratulated for its initiative and courage in producing such a book.

As for the author: A few more newspaper reporters like Mannie Lavine in the country and grafters would curl up like a caterpillar on a hot stone.

Bitter Truth.

Paint portraits for 30 years, as Albert Sterner has done and you'll realize the truth of his observation that "American people don't really like themselves. They all want to look like, or be made to look like somebody else. They will pay, and pay handsomely for counterfeit presentments of their mugs or the mugs of their offsprings; but after they have paid, they want to be portrayed in the semblance of something fanciful and ideal."

Hic Jacet.

John Sargent, when asked why he had relinquished portrait painting, said:

"Every time I paint a portrait I make an enemy."

And he wrote the following epitaph for himself:

"Here lies John Singer Sargent, who died of painting portraits."

Commotion Pictures.

The real talkies in New York are to be found in the movie houses on the East Side—not the Second Delancey St. "palaces" but the dingy little 15-cent joints.

The picture is on. The place is packed to the doors. From the loud speaker back of the screen comes a hollow voice:

"Do you think your wife still loves you?"

"I know it—I know it—I can feel it way down here!" retorts the hero, thumping himself vehemently on the chest.

Mrs. Niffenbloom, in the tenth row, excitedly nudges her neighbor, Mrs. Naftal.

"He feels it, in d' heart!" she explains, in a whisper that can be heard three rows away.

A little later the hero says: "The doctor is in love with you."

Once more Mrs. Niffenbloom excitedly nudges her neighbor.

"Jealous, see?"

"Ja, ja—an' how," nods Mrs. Naftal.

This Way, Folks.

New York is the favorite stamping ground of the pitchmen—fakers of the curb. Ease of transportation has created an army of these itinerant salesmen. Probably a fourth of the grand total of the country is to be found in Winter on the sidewalks of the Tiger Town. In summer Coney Island has always been their favorite resort and probably always will be.

Backward Glances

By A. W. Neville

An incident in connection with the trial of the Hay Meadow killers in Federal court here forty years ago was told me by Capt. J. J. Dickerson, then United States marshal.

Federal prisoners were kept in the Lamar county jail under contract, and the sheriff was allowed 75 cents a day for feeding them, the same amount the county allowed for its prisoners. Food was cheap then and while 40 cents would not provide much ice cream and pie it did furnish plain substantial fare, though there was little or no profit in it for the sheriff.

Capt. Dickerson realized this inadequacy of the allowance and told Sheriff Gann that the next time he made to Washington to have his accounts as marshal audited he would try to have the allowance increased. The men from Ladonia concerned in the Hay Meadow affair were in jail at the time but they did not eat jail fare. They were furnished money by some lodge brothers, as I have told before, and their meals were sent in from a restaurant or hotel.

Capt. Dickerson says he went into Attorney General Miller's office in Washington and broached the subject, telling Mr. Miller that 40 cents a day was too small an allowance, to which the official agreed and appeared surprised that it was no more. "What does he feed them for that amount?" Mr. Miller asked. Marshal Dickerson said he told him it was good plain fare but the sheriff was losing money on it. Mr. Miller was untying a small package that had been brought in with the mail and put on his desk while he was talking to Marshal Dickerson and just at this time it was uncovered and disclosed a cigar box that had in it a slab of corrupone, hard as a rock, and a piece of side meat that appeared in the last stages of decay.

"What's this?" said Mr. Miller, and then found a note enclosed that asserted the food was a sample of what was being fed to the Kansas men who were in jail on a charge of murder. It was a trick one of their friends had pulled in an effort to gain sympathy for the men, and though Marshal Dickerson insisted that it was not a sample of the food fed the men the attorney general was so indignant that he refused to consider any increase in the price for feeding the prisoners.

The coincidence of the package being delivered and opened just when Marshal Dickerson was making his plea is another illustration of happenings that no one can explain.

Diet and Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D., Author of "THE HUMAN

Dr. Clendening

There is no such thing as a normal diet, in the strict sense of the term. That is to say, there is no diet that everyone is agreed upon, which must be followed in order to be healthy. Certain things must be present in any diet that is healthy, but the proportion of different ingredients can vary in two different diets quite widely and still the two people eating them be healthy.

How close do average families, eating whatever comes along day after day, come to the ideal mathematical requirements of a normal diet? The question has been the subject of an investigation by the James McKenzie Institute in Scotland.

Dr. James Mackenzie, perhaps the greatest clinical physician of the last generation, founded an institution in St. Andrews, Scotland, before his death for the study of the early stages of disease, a field which he considered was much neglected.

Studying the diet of 154 families it was found that on the average they were all eating less protein and less starch than they should and more fat. The exact figures are as follows:

Percentage of Total Calories	Protein	Carbohydrate	Fat
Ideal Standard	17	67	16
Actual, as eaten	11	54	35

There is no reason to suppose that these figures would be any different if any average group of American families were studied.

A strange finding was that the total number of calories consumed per person per day on the average was 2,100 for manual laborers, and 2,200 a day for those in sedentary occupations. It is recognized that those with sedentary occupations expend much energy in outdoor games and exercising it hardly seems possible a manual laborer. Can it be that the playing golf is really using much energy as his friend with a pick? Or can it be that the low with the pick rests more he seems to do?

Nutrition experts say that more food is eaten than actual requirements call for and is noted in the form of extra weight, it goes into luxus consumption or secondary dynamic a

The quality of food, even than the quantity, varies with family's income. With a rising come there is a tendency to more on foods rich in protein, as butcher meat, and also to place the starch in the food fat. Guiding Your Child

FIRST PLACE

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Now and then for a little day or a little hour, every mother's child needs to feel, without necessarily being aware of it, that he holds first place in his mother's love.

In a family where the mother loves all her children with fairly equal love, this happens quite naturally and quite unconsciously. The child who is ill, the birthday child, or the child who has won some special honor in the class room or on the athletic field gets the center of the stage and his due measure of attention gifts or praise.

But in homes in which, as frequently happens, there is great discrepancy in the amounts of love the various children receive, the mother must be acutely conscious of this need of every child to be first sometimes. She must try in manner and ritual to make up in some degree for the spontaneous feeling which she lacks. If she does not do this, the less loved child will feel the situation with cruel sensitiveness.

Gertrude and Helen are sisters. Their mother loved Gertrude best. Her birthday was an occasi was heralded by secret pre tions and the rustlings of paper. The day itself was o party frocks, masses of flower high festivity.

Helen's birthday was mark no excitement in the air. A breakfast table a few hasty ages appeared, and at supper was a birthday cake. It was a hearted, make-shift affair. Th drop of disillusionment was re when Helen discovered lying sister's dressing table on the ing after her own birthday counterpart of the blue bead mother had given her the da fore. It was clear that not this once had her mother th solely of her.

Such experiences leave clear impressions on the ch mind. The are more than the ing pricks of disappointment influence profoundly the indi al's valuation of himself. They very well induce in him feelin inferority which blight his in his ability to achieve succe work. They may inspire dee trust in his ability to win le first place with any one.

Washington Daily Letter

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON.—Taxation will be the big legislative issue in congress next winter. Presidential politics will be the really essential issue, but it will not exactly be legislative, although it certainly will affect legislation.

Taxation will predominate legislatively because there will have to be more of it, and the question will arise very urgently.

Upon whom shall all or most of the additional burden fall?

Interests will clash in the answering of this query. Philosophies of government will clash also; likewise, will economic theories.

Business may improve between now and Dec. 7, when the nation's lawmakers are due to assemble for their next session. Administration spokesmen say it already is improving more than merely seasonally; they think the worst of the depression is over.

Even so, taxes nevertheless will have to be increased.

Uncle Sam's treasury is in the red more than a billion dollars now. A year hence, according to not especially pessimistic calculations, it will be in the red twice as much more, or a three-billion-dollar total. This deficit will require taking care of, no matter how much better business may be.

Hence there will be no dodging heavier taxation.

It is true that the increase will not absolutely have to be made next winter. It can be staved off considerably longer than that, by letting the national debt pile up.

That is one of the things the row will be about.

The party in power never likes to boost taxes, because it very naturally fears it will be blamed by the voters; to the prejudice of its chances of victory at the ensuing election.

At first thought it may seem as if this is just what would suit the out-of-power party—which would not be altogether a wrong conclusion. Nevertheless, the "outs" cannot clamor too loudly for an increase, scheming thus to embarrass the "ins." If they do, there is the risk that the voters will hold them responsible rather the "ins," and their police coil will be worse than the from its muzzle.

However, the arguments f taxation advance at the nex sion of congress will be extre cogent.

It will not be easy to defe program deliberately contem ing government expenditures enormously in excess of the expe national income, and few pe are unsophisticated enough to lieve that Uncle Sam's "expe can be pruned appreciably. deed, all that anyone hopes economy conferences is that creases will be retarded so what not that actual reduct will be effected.

Assuming it is agreed that t sources of revenue must be fo there are two widely diffe schools of thought concerning proper quarter in which to for them.

Indians Stage Rally In Ninth To Down Yanks

NEW YORK, June 8, (AP)—For eight innings Monday, Charles Ruffing of the Yankees pitched a baseball masterpiece, holding the Cleveland Indians to one lone single. Then he was struck by lightning.

Bang, bang, bang, bang—and the Indians had belted four hits, scored four runs and won themselves a ball game, 4-1. A single by Hodapp, triples by Porter and Myatt and Earl Averill's eighth home run of the year did the work.

Wes Ferrell, pitching his ninth victory of the year for the Indians, gave up only three hits.

THE BAT BAG
By Harry Cox

From McAlester, Okla., comes a report that smacks of the old days when a ball game was a test of nerve as well as skill and speed. Two gents who were "empiring" the game at McAlester last week became peeved at each other and emptied their six guns without doing any special damage except to momentarily halt the game while the spectators scurried for whatever cover came in handy. This little affair came over a difference of opinion over a decision, one of the umps declaring the other was blind, while the other made several statements concerning the past history and antecedents of his brother arbiter.

This affair was a little out of the ordinary inasmuch as two umpires were trying to potshot each other. Many attempts have been made to kill umpires, but in all previous cases it has been either the spectators or players who were trying to do the dirty work. The writer once saw an umpire in Wichita Falls jump a ten foot fence fleeing from an irate fan, armed with a young cannon in the shape of a Colt .45, but never before in the annals of the game, according to our knowledge, has one umpire tried to annihilate another. But then there's always something new in baseball.

It memory is not at fault it was in McAlester that the fans tried to kill Dit Spencer when that young man was umpiring in the Western Association. One bloodthirsty fan, armed with a pair of ice tongs, wore them out on Spencer, while Dit beat a tattoo on the iceman's face with a mask. This joust was a draw, but reinforcements hurried to the ice man's aid, and Spencer, after a valiant but losing battle, beat a retreat. A deputy sheriff who had been sent out to maintain order helped Spencer along by batting him over the head with a six-shooter. Men wuz men in them days!

And it was this same Spencer who was once treed in the old Merrick hotel in this city by a crowd of irate fans, but not for any umpirical mistakes. This all came about in a ball game between Paris and Bonham, and Spencer was playing with Bonham. Paris had an ex-big leaguer playing with them who had been canned by the Bonham club. This gent, making an attempt to steal second, was thrown out by ten feet. He saw he would be tagged out and came at Dit with his spikes up, in an effort to cut him down.

Spencer may have had some shortcomings, but a lack of what is vulgarly termed "guts" was not one of them. When this fellow came hurtling down the base line with his spikes pointed for the Spencerian legs, that agile young man merely stepped back, holding the ball in his hand. When the onrushing player arose to brush off his uniform, Mr. Spencer went into action. Wham! That ball landed square on the base runners head. The net result of this was that the aforesaid player became inactive—in fact he was knocked cold.

The crowd started after Spencer, and his brother, Wirt, playing right field, came tearing in to take a hand in the melee. Wirt and some of the visiting players armed themselves with bats and got ready to die on the field of honor. The row was finally quelled and Spencer put in a carriage with some women and driven to the Merrick hotel, where he stayed until the next day. The crowd that thirsted for Spencer's blood was soon to cheer him, as he was hired in a few days to play for Paris. Old timers will recall this incident, which occurred when Paris was playing that memorable series back in the late 90's.

Three Qualify For Southwest

DALLAS, June 8, (AP)—Francis Scheider, Dallas, Hugh Carpenter, Dallas, and Tony Butler, Corpus Christi, qualified here Monday as representatives of the southwest in the national open golf tournament at Toledo.

Scheider, professional at Brook Hollow, toured his home course in 74-71—145. Tony Butler, Corpus Christi country club pro, had a 75-76—151, and Carpenter, assistant pro at Cedar Crest, Dallas, got a card of 74-77—151. Tied with the latter two was Jack Burke of Houston, but he lost out in the swatfest to eliminate one of the three second-place ties. It was the first time in several years that Burke had failed to qualify for the national tournament.

Tuesday Final Practice Time In Dallas Play

FORT WORTH, June 8, (AP)—A final day of fun, frolic and practice and the large field of the annual Rivercrest Country club invitation golf tournament will begin playing in earnest. Tuesday is the final day of practice, the 18 hole qualifying round being scheduled for Wednesday with match play absorbing the rest of the week.

Although the field gained in brilliancy Monday, none found the Rivercrest course a breeze, the scores hovering close to 80. M. M. Merriman of Amarillo, former state champion, turned in one of the best scores, 76.

Many other stars who competed in the national open qualifying round at Dallas Monday are expected to put in their appearance Tuesday.

The field was increased to 58 Monday.

Magnolia Oilers Beat Bear Cats

The Magnolia Oilers retained undisputed possession second place in the city league standing by whaling the Johnson-Billingsley Bear Cats Monday afternoon by a score of 10 to 7. Abshire, on the mound for the Oilers, was hit rather freely, but managed to weather the storm and emerged the victor. Three errors by the Bear Cats helped in the scoring. Black for the Bear Cats hit a home run that helped keep his team in the running.

BAPTISTS FAVOR PROHIBITION, PEACE

KANSAS CITY, June 8, (AP)—The northern Baptist convention reaffirmed its advocacy of prohibition and world peace Monday and uttered a protest against denial of citizenship to those who refuse to bear arms in defense of the nation during war time. In resolutions adopted at closing sessions of the convention pictured armament as a medium which "inevitably will create suspicion and fear among all the nations and diminish rather than increase the security of the United States."

Examining Trial Finds No Evidence Youths Are Freed

On pleas of "not guilty" three local youths Monday afternoon won in an examining trial before Commissioner John S. Stone on charges of interfering with federal prohibition agents in the dscharge of their duties. The two women accompanying Elmer Lanning and Jack Harrington, federal agents, when the youths were arrested Sunday afternoon in Paris, did not testify at the examining trial.

While enroute from Sherman to Paris, federal agents said, the three youths Sunday afternoon prevented the officers from passing their automobile. Driving a faster automobile, the three youths kept their lead from near Honey Grove to Paris where they were arrested by the federal agents.

Because of insufficient evidence that the youths interfered with the agents' discharge of duties, Commissioner Stone dismissed the charges. Lanning was the only witness to testify at the examining trial.

OFFICERS TO FACE

At suggestion of the office of the secretary of state, Washington, the chief executive said the state would prepare the bodies of the two youths for burial at state expense and would ship them to Mexico City.

"No officer has the right to make an arrest without a warrant except for disturbance of the peace committed in his presence," the governor said. "Shooting under other circumstances is done at the peril of the officer."

"Owing to the standing of the Mexicans and the international aspect with a neighboring republic, it is essential that you make a thorough, complete and unprejudiced investigation."

Governor Murray also addressed a letter to H. Valdez, Mexican consul here, expressing regrets at the tragedy.

HOOVER SENDS REGRETS.

MEXICO CITY, June 8, (AP)—A cable from President Hoover of the United States expressing his regret over the slaying at Ardmore, Okla., today of Emilio Cortes Rubio, nephew of President Ortiz Rubio, and Manuel Gomez, both students, was delivered to the Mexican president this evening by Ambassador J. Reuben Clark.

The ambassador also presented his own personal regrets and those of the state department, going later to the foreign office where he made a similar presentation of regrets to Foreign Minister Genaro Estrada.

Official comment regarding the slayings will be withheld until the Mexican consul at Oklahoma City makes a full investigation into the tragedy, Foreign Minister Estrada said. He said the consul had been instructed to go to Ardmore to look into the matter and that a quick and compelte report was expected.

ASK INQUIRY.

WASHINGTON, June 8, (AP)—The Mexican embassy late Monday requested the state department to open an investigation into the fatal shooting of two Mexican students at Ardmore, Okla.

Embassy officials made it clear in announcing the action tonight the representation to the state department was not in the nature of a protest. It was explained that the embassy wished only to have full information on the case for transmission to Mexico City.

Emelio Cortes Rubio, understood to be a relative of President Ortiz Rubio, and Manuel Gomez were the students. They were shot by a deputy sheriff in the Oklahoma town.

No information was given that a protest was contemplated, and it was indicated that the request of the state department was the usual procedure followed in cases of this nature.

The embassy was without detailed information of the shooting tonight, although it had received brief confirmation from the Mexican consul at Kansas City, Mo., of whom additional information has been requested.

Dallas Cast Off Pitches Victory For Shreveport

DALLAS, June 8, (AP)—A young Dallas cast-off, Southpaw Ralph Erickson, who wears spectacles when pitching under the flood lights and goes without them during matinee engagements, turned on his old mates here Monday night to pitch Shreveport to a 4-2 victory in the last game for both clubs before they open their second southern invasion of the season. Erickson confined the Steers to five scattered hits to out-duel Lou Garland, big rookie righthander, who was selected over him for a berth on the Dallas pay-roll.

Fourth place went to Molly Gourlay with 83 and 85 and fifth to Miss Orcutt, Englewood, N. J., girl who took an 87 Monday to add to an 82 Saturday for 169 and fifth place.

THE ROMANCE OF A BUSINESS GIRL

Chapter 30.

Foster had watched Mary with concern and more interest than he had admitted to himself. Not that the radical change in her personal life had affected her services to him. In fact, it seemed that with the realization that her work was her only salvation and the means by which she would retain her sanity in the blackness of her grief, Mary's efficiency increased. She spurred her ambition to a harder pace and drove her strength with relentless zeal.

One evening, a few days after Bonnie had announced her engagement to Dick, Mary was working late with Foster in his spacious, beautiful private office. Mary always enjoyed those evenings, no matter how tired she might be or however much she might have wished to be somewhere else.

Now that she could not be with Dick, there was no place else she would rather be. In fact, she preferred working late to being at home and perhaps having to face the unbearable experience of seeing Dick. She couldn't bear that—yet. Some day she would have to meet it, she knew. Very soon, she would have to discipline herself to look upon him as a brother. He already had forgotten that she existed—as a woman—and it was her duty to put him in his natural place and forget the past. She wondered if she ever could do that, and resolved that a little time would help her.

Subconsciously, Mary was thinking these things while she worked rapidly at the task before her. It was not unusual for her and Foster to stop in the midst of their work and discuss something entirely irrelevant to it, often actuated by a name or a comment. Their association had always been extremely pleasant and agreeable, in spite of his habit of giving her the brunt of his trouble with others.

They had occasion to speak of Jameson-Blair, the firm for which Dick worked. "By the way," Foster observed, "I haven't seen young Baldwin for almost a month. Is he out of town most of the time, now?"

"No more than usual, I believe." Mary replied evenly, having been prepared to face this issue for some time.

"You don't see much of him, either, eh?"

"No; I haven't seen Dick since you have."

"Hm! That's too bad. I thought you and he would make a splendid match. You were fond of him," his voice raised with a hint of uncertainty.

"Oh, yes. But we changed our plans."

"I—see," he nodded, looking at her with a thoughtful admiration. "You are fine—Mary."

His calling her by her first name startled her, and she looked up quickly.

He appeared a little self-conscious.

"I hope you don't mind my calling you Mary. I always think of you that way—the name suits you so admirably. Sensible, honest, unaffected, efficient—so easy to say and write—and beautiful too."

"I like it," she offered simply.

"I like your name, and I like you—"

Mary started, almost gasped her astonishment at Foster's sudden personal interest. Their relations always had pertained strictly to business.

"Please don't mind my talking to you like this. I am not being sentimental. But as I said, I like you immensely and I'd like to help you, if you will let me try. May I talk?"

"Of course," she agreed, curious in spite of herself.

"I am not blind. I can see that Baldwin must have let you down pretty hard. You have been going through a bad struggle these past weeks—"

"Has my work—?" she began, with consternation.

"Not in the least. Rather you have outdone yourself. You have worked too hard, trying to lose yourself. You are young. But you will learn, even through suffering, that you have to be philosophical about life. Almost nothing happens as you plan it and want it to be. Life demands continual adjustments and resignations."

"But love—" she objected, and stopped, bitterly.

"You see. Already you have learned that love brings disillusion and disappointments, as everything does. Once upon a time, I — but never mind that. A man, you know, can be hurt quite as easily and as deeply as a woman. That is where I found part of my philosophy. I learned that romance is only illusion. Practical living is what counts. And it is what brings us real happiness in the end."

"That is my only hope for happiness now," she confided, her eyes meeting his frankly. "Some day, when I have become experienced and capable enough, I should like to be a woman's broker, either as a member of some firm, or an independent one."

He smiled at her with admiration for her courage. "You are splendid, Mary. Don't think that the way you have worked here with me has made me oblivious of your pleasant company and association. Even before young Baldwin appeared, I had been doing some serious thinking. Then I saw that you cared for him, so I remained silent. If you had found love and youth and could command happiness, too, I was glad for you. But that is changed now. So I want to offer you the next best thing—it might prove to be the best, after all. I have wondered for some time if you would marry me."

Mary had been making precursory pot hooks all over her shorthand pad while he was talking. At his last words, she looked up with sudden astonishment, almost blinking her eyes as if she had been asleep and hadn't heard aright.

He smiled oddly at her expression. "Is it so unbelievable as that?"

"But I—why—Mr. Foster—" courtship. He hadn't so much as she began, and wondered what she possibly could say that would be pertinent. Why? he was proposing to her! Right here in the office—true, as beautiful as any drawing room—but without preamble, preface or introductory held her hand for a moment in the fourteen months of their working together. What a cold-blooded proposition it was from beginning to end!

"Marriage," he continued, "need not involve violent emotions—better not. It should be a sympathetic, sane business proposition. Perhaps if you and Dick Baldwin had agreed to form a life partnership on such a basis instead of relying upon very unreliable and impractical emotions, you would have carried it out with success."

"But what would be the sense, then, to marriage?" she objected.

"My dear girl, that may be youth's whole conception of marriage, but it is a transient condition that occurs for the sole purpose of bringing the sexes together. When that is accomplished, it vanishes—and what is left. A business partnership that is supposed to last for a lifetime. Often it doesn't, particularly if its sole foundation is the emotional attraction that brought the two together."

"But what else could attract two people to each other and result in marriage?"

"Many things. For instance, the success and congeniality of just such an association as ours. Now, I should want nothing better than to marry just such a balanced, capable girl as you are; and I have wondered for a long time why it shouldn't be a splendid thing for both of us. You could so well manage a home that my wealth would provide, and make just as charming a social hostess as you have been a business hostess and social secretary to me. I have long appreciated your charm and pleasing appearance. You would grace a home admirably. Our association here in the office has been so congenial and profitable to us both—why can't we be life partners?"

TINY TRAFFIC COP SUPPORTS FAMILY

This four-year-old traffic cop averts accidents at a dangerous grade crossing near Rush Run, O., and, at the same time, helps support her jobless family. Hundreds of motorists know little Norma Barcus and rely on her to signal them when it is safe to cross the tracks. Then, in gratitude, they toss her coins, every one of which, except two cents, which go for candy and blow gum, Norma turns over to her family. Photo shows Norma, inset, and on guard at the crossing, just before she shouted, "Go ahead there, fella', you're not allowed to stop there in the roadway, and I don't want my picture tooked, either!" Even truck drivers stop when Norma barks commands.

Dallas Woman Describes Relief From Stomach Troubles

"My son," declared Mrs. Edna Scoggins, of 4202 Carl, Dallas, Texas, in describing the case of her son, Osa, "had been troubled for about five years with a very bad case of stomach trouble, chiefly constipation and indigestion.

"Why, some things that he ate would simply 'knock him out' and he said he would just as soon miss a meal as eat it and suffer so terribly afterward. His appetite failed him and he didn't seem to care for anything. He had a weak stomach and took a terrible cold.

"I had Argotane in the house, for I use it on almost every member of the family at times. So I got him to take it. He liked it fine and it seemed to help him, so he has continued taking it, and he is so well pleased with the results he has obtained that he is glad to endorse it, I am sure."

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Paris at the Palace Drug Store.—Adv.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, June 8, (AP)—Cotton rallied from an early decline Monday.

The general market closed very steady at net advances of 7 to 10 points.

The opening was steady 3 to 11 points lower in response to reports of favorable weather over the week end, relatively easy Liverpool cables, and the lower opening of the stock market.

There was considerable selling of January during the day which was believed to be for foreign account, with some traders attributing it to Bombay interests, but general offerings were not heavy after the early selling had run its course, and the new low level of prices seemed to have brought in an increased trade demand. This promoted covering in connection with the steadier ruling of the afternoon stock market, a private report from Oklahoma pointing to a decrease of about 20 per cent in acreage, and reiterated reports of a sharp reduction in fertilizer tag sales.

Liverpool cables reported continental and Bombay liquidation in that market and said that business in cotton cloths and yarns was restricted.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, June 8, (AP)—The cotton market here was less active Monday than it was last week. Prices fluctuated rather nervously though showing less dependence on the stock market. Opening cables were much lower than due at the start and the weather in the belt generally reported favorable over the week.

The market closed near the top showing net gains for the day of 11 to 12 points.

Liverpool cables came in 6 to 7 penny points worse than due and private cables reported that local traders and Bombay liquidated. Manchester cabled that the market was disorganized with cloth and yarn business unsettled.

After mid-session prices made new highs for the day at 8.44 for July, 8.78 for October and 9.00 for December or 23 to 25 points above the early lows.

Chicago Grain.

CHICAGO, June 8, (AP)—Heavy rainfall in parts of Alberta province, Canada, and predictions of showers elsewhere in Canadian drouth territory led to lower prices Monday for cereals. An increase of 815,000 bushels shown by the United States wheat visible supply, contrasting with 2,363,000 decrease at this time last year was also a bearish factor. On the other hand, private Washington reports indicating possibility of 4 per cent beer were associated by brokers with a sudden late rally in wheat, but the market quickly fell back again.

Wheat closed unsettled, 5-8 to 1 1-4 cents lower, corn unchanged to 1-2 down, oats 1-8 to 1-4 off and provisions unchanged to a setback of 7 cents.

Critical crop conditions resulting from widespread Canadian drouth were ineffective in upholding wheat, especially during the earlier dealings.

Corn and ots went down with wheat and as a result of favorable weather and crop news. December corn touched a fresh low price record for the season.

Closing indemnities, wheat, July 57 1-2 to 5-8, 59 1-8 to 1-4; Sept. 57 3-4 to 7-8, 59 1-2 to 5-8; Dec. 61 1-2, 63 1-8. Corn, July 56 to 56 1-8, 57 1-8; Sept. 52 to 52 1-8, 53 1-4; Dec. 45 7-8, 46 5-8.

New York Stock Market.

NEW YORK June 8 (AP)—Stocks rallied rather impressively Monday after an early decline that had been led by the rails. The recovery was unspectacular compared with last week's feverish ascent, but it was substantial and the average of 90 issues rose 4.2 points net, closing above the level reached last Thursday.

Not for some time had the market been able to show so large a gain on so small a turnover, for today's volume was only 1,700,000 shares. Rails issues, which had wilted under Pennsylvania's report of a first quarter net loss, recovered quickly after the morning's accumulation of offerings had been absorbed. Oils, favored by a more cheerful turn in the news, looked much stronger. Coppers, motors, chemicals and foods acquired group strength, and the utilities moved up vigorously.

U. S. Steel common dropped 2 points on the first sale, extended its loss fractionally, but was prominent in the upturn and gained 1 7-8 net. American Can, Case, Columbian Carbon, Union Carbide, American Telephone, Public Service of New Jersey, Johns-Manville, Rock Island and Woolworth were up 3-4 at the close, while General Electric, Westinghouse, Anaconda, National Power & Light, Consolidated Gas, National Biscuit, Sears Roebuck, Loew's and Du Pont advanced 2 or more.

Fort Worth Livestock.

Cattle, 5,500; general trade all classes slaughter cattle about steady; grass slaughter steers predominating in run, sales 4.50 to 5.15; better grades fat yearlings very scarce, butcher cows around 3.00 to 3.35; low cutters mostly 2.00; stock calves and yearlings active; around 25 higher; desirable grades 6.00 to 6.25; slaughter calves tending weak to lower on packer account, early purchases on order account steady, desirable heavies in 6.00 range.
